Township Opposes Expansion

The Public Hearing scheduled for the May 13th regular Lowell City Council meeting was adjourned un- til May 29th, the next regular council meeting night. In a brief exploration of the proposed amendment to Zoning Ordinance No. 22, to be considered at that time, City Manager Blake Bacon said the amendment would allow for Planned Unit Development (PUD) in the township. The amendment pertains to undeveloped areas of the City and also offers uniformity in regulations. Concerning the City's request for a feasibility study for possible expansion to the Lowell City Airport, Vergennes Township Supervisor, Carl Kropf, told council members there had been a "great deal" of concern voiced by township residents having nega- tive feelings about any relinquishment of the airport. "We also have no intention of ever seeing an airport," Bacon said, "after going over with township board members, they said they would go on record as being "very definitely opposed" to further expansion. Kropf said he felt the Council should be made aware of their feelings before "you get too far down the road." Mayor Anderson, chairing the City Council, promised to keep the township informed in the matter. Interest in the development of Lowell's airport as a 'satellite' was sparked when the City learned there was a study proving it to be feasible. "In that regard, we feel we should also look at the study to see if it be feasible," the Mayor said. The City Council made a request, through the Kent County Board of Commissioners, for financial aid to work the $3,500 cost of the study. The councilman, speaking on the recommendation and services offered through Senior Neighbors, a federally funded program, the fire-fighting training through State and County levels. There are fire centers in the country which...
