OCCUPANTS OF NEGONCE READY FOR BUSINESS.

Handsome New Block on the Site of the Big Fire of April 11, 1905.

In one week less than six months after the big fire of April 11, 1905, the handsome new Negonce block erected on the site of the destroyed business places, was completely occupied and business was progressing.

Edelmann & Nerreter, the new hardware firm, opened Saturday in the Bergin building (first on the left in the picture) on the site of the old Boylan store.

A. D. Oliver opened in the new store (the one shown at the right end of the picture) last Thursday.

M. N. Henry's new drug store is next to the hardware, on the site of the old Hunt-Sturgis store; and Ruben's two stores are between Henry and Oliver, dry goods on the left and clothing on the right.

On the second floor, S. P. Hicks has his office over the drug store, his old location; Dr. Greene's is over the dry goods store; Dr. McDannell's is over the clothing store; and Dentist White is over Oliver's.

The entire block is a triumph of the builder's art and the stores and offices individually, are models of their kind, fit cause for satisfaction on the part of owners and tenants, and for pride on the part of the people of Lowell.

HORSE GOOD SWIMMER.

Fred Arthur Drives Horse into Flat River on Main Street.

Fred Arthur, a Saranac blacksmith, accompanied by May Godfrey of Lowell narrowly escaped driving into Flat river on Main street in this village, Saturday evening, at the middle span, which is temporarily bridged by a narrow crossing, waiting the arrival of the steel for the permanent bridges.

It appears that Arthur drove his horse upon the plank guard rail and the animal, which is said to be blind in one eye, stopped, when the blacksmith hit it with his whip. The horse jumped into the river, and the occupants of the buggy were saved from a cold bath by a wheel locking on the end post of the temporary bridge. The fall luckily detached the horse from the buggy, and the gate of the King Milling Co. being raised, the animal swam down stream with the current and landed on the island, where it was captured and given needed care, for which the Village paid.
