Miss Irene Murphy responded to the toast "The Class of '05" in well chosen words. In behalf of her class of eighteen she said that they fee that each has a work to perform in on the second floor, where old school-mates and classmates formed con-genial groups and at eight thirty those who come after them, and genial groups, and at eight-thirty inose who come after them, and joined in unison with the Alumni in giving the class of '07 a hearty well. giving the class of '07 a hearty wel come.

The toastmaster spoke again of his fondness for music, and Miss Isabel Fallas, with her usual grace, sang "Carmena Waltz Song," accompanied by Miss Mary Whitney. Miss Kathleen McGrath was then called upon as president of the Class of 1906, and responded feelingly. telling of all that their graduation day had meant to them during all their hig

To the Public

Through the Lowell Ledger, we wish to thank William I. Burdick for the interest he has taken in the affairs of our business, for his honest and upright ways in handling any matters that were brought up in connection with our business and for his many favors connected with this store in the past two and one half years.

To Mr. Burdick we are in a large way indebted for our large and prosperous business of today and we regret to lose so good and faithful as man. But we join with his many friends in wishing him, with his partner a successful grocery career.

We have engaged the services of C. W. Doering of Fowler, who has been connected with the shoe business for the past twenty-six years, speaks both English

The "New Process" The Stove for Summer Cooking

The improved "NEW PROCESS" vapor stove, is the original evaporating stove that has revolutionized the gasoline stove business. For many years it has demonstrated its superiority over every other stove, in safety, simplicity and economy of operation, and has won for itself a place in the hearts and homes of many thousands of women, whose burdens have been madelighter and lives happier by its use. The stove can be instantly started in operation; turn the valve wheel and apply the match; the stove is ready for work. The ovens are constructed the same as gas ranges, which have an enviable reputation for perfect baking-

'The "NEW PROCESS" solves the problem of economical cooking in all country homes where gas for fuel cannot be obtained, giving the user every advantage, convenience and comfort which the use of gas stoves and other modern appliances afford. We have the sale of these stoves and invite you to call and see them demonstrated.

THE HAYWOOD TRIAL. The prosecution in the Steunenberg murder trial entering in carnest upon ble Thursday in Philadelphia over the substantiation and corvoloration of Harry Orchard's testimony, showed a continuous thread of evidence connecting George Pettibone's store in Denver with Orchard at San Francisco engaged on the Bradley murder plot, partly another direct line by which it is hoped to show that Haywood engaged and paid Steve Adams Huntington, Ind., committed suicide. for the same desperate work, and added special touches of confirmation to Orchard's general story.

The Haywood defense closed the cross-examination of Harry Orchard by a fierce attack on his motives in confessing. He was moved to tears, but maintained that he was actuated solely by a desire to make reparation for his crimes and save his soul.

The Haywood defense carried the cross-examination of Orchard down to the Steunenberg murder. The witness told of a plot to kidnap the children of a rich miner for ransom and said it was suggested by David Coates, former lieutenant governor of Colo, from lynching by the arrival of the rado.

Harry Orchard, on the stand for his sixth day in the Haywood trial, firmly tarium in Winnetka, a Chicago subwithstood all the attempts of the de urb, terrorized the patients and esfense to discredit his story. THE PRESIDENT TO EDITORS Roosevelt Delivers a Notable Address at Jamestown, Va.

Speaks Before the Delegates to the National Editorial Association---Touches Upon Important National Questions.

address of President Roosevelt before the National Editorial association at the exposition here:

It is of course a mere truism to say that no other body of our countrymen wield as extensive an influence as those who write for the daily press and for the periodicals. It is also a truism to say that such power implies the gravest responsibility, and the man exercising it should hold himself accountable, and should be held by others accountable, precisely as if he occupied any other position of publie trust. I do not intend to dwell upon your duties to-day, save that I shall permit myself to point out one matter where it seems to me that the need of our people is vital. It is essential that the man in public life and the man who writes in the public press shall both of them, if they are really good servants of the people, be prompt to assail wrongdoing and wickedness. But in thus assailing wrongdoing and wickedness, there are two conditions to be fulfilled, because if unfulfilled, harm and not good will result. In the first place, be sure of your facts and avoid everything like hysteria or exaggeration; for to assail a decent man for something of which he is innocent is to give aid and comfort to every secondrel, while indulgence in hysterical exaggeration serves to weaken. not strengthen, the statement of truth. In the second place, be sure that you base your judgment on conduct and not on the social or economic position of the individual with whom you are dealing. There are good and bad men in every walk of life, and their being good or bad does not depend upon whether they have or do not have large bank accounts. Yet this elemental fact, this fact which we all accept as self-evident, when we think each of us of the people whom he himself knows in his business and social relations, is often completely ignored by certain public men and certain public writers. The men who thus ignore it and who attack wickedness only when found in a particular class are always unsafe, and are sometimes very dangerous, leaders. Distrust equally the can who is never able to discover any vices of rich men to attack and the man who confines himself to attacking the sias and shortcomings of rich men. It is a sure sign of moral and mental dishonesty in any man if in his public as-

Jamestown, Va .- The following is the j of the home maker. The department of the interior and the department of justice joined in prosecuting the offenders against the law; but both the law and its administration were defective and needed to be changed. Three years ago a public lands commission was appointed to scrutinize the law and the facts and to recommend a remedy. Their examination specifically showed the existence of great frauds upon the public domain, and their recommendations for changes in the law were made with the design of conserving the natural resources of every part of the public land by putting it to its best use. Attention was especially called to the prevention of settlement by the passage of great areas of public lands into the hands of a few men, and to the enormous waste caused by unrestricted grazing on the open range; a system of using the natural forage on the public domain which amounts to putting a premium on its destruction. The recommendations of the public lands commission were sound, for they were especially in the interest of the actual home maker; and where the small home maker could not utilize the land, it was provided that the government should keep control of it so that it could not be monopolized by a few wealthy men. Congress has not yet acted upon these recommendations, except for the repeal of the iniquitous lieu-land law. But the recommendations are so just and proper, so essential to our national welfare, that I believe they will surely ultimately be adopted.

In 1891 congress authorized the president to create national forests in the public domain. These forests reserves remained for a long time in charge of the general land office, which had no men properly trained in forestry. But another department, that of agriculture, possessed the trained men. In other words, the government forests were without foresters and the government for-esters without forests. Waste of effort and waste of forests inevitably followed. Finally the situation was ended in 1905 by the creation of the United States forest service, which has stopped the waste, conserved the resources of the national forests, and made them useful; so that our forests are now being managed on a coherent plan, and in a way that augurs well for the future.

The mineral fuels of the eastern United sould upon iniquity he is never able to States have already passed into the hands of large private owners, and those of the west are rapidly following. This should not be, for such mineral resources belong in a peculiar degree to the whole people. Under private control there is much waste from the shortsighted methods of working, and the complete utilization is often sacrificed for a greater immediate profit. The mineral fuels under our present conditions are as essential to our prosperity as the forests will always be. The difference is that the supply is definitely limited, for coal does not grow and trees do. It is obvious that the mineral fuels should be conserved, not wasted, and that enough of them should remain in the hands of the government to protect the people against unjust or extortionate prices so far as that can still be done. What has been accomplished in the regulation of the great oil fields of the Indian territory offers a striking example of the good results of such a policy. Last summer, accordingly, I withdrew most of the coal-bearing public lands temporlegislation necessary to protect the public interest by the conservation of the mineral fuels; that is, for the power to keep the fee in the government and to lease the coal, oil, and gas rights under proper regulation. No such legislation was passed, but I still hope that we shall

The inability of the railroads of the. United States to meet the demands upon them has drawn public attention forcibly to the use of our waterways for trasportation. But it is obvious that this is only one of their many uses, and that a planned and orderly development is impossible except by taking into account all the services they are capable of rendering. It was upon this ground that the inland waterways commission was recently appointed. Their duty is to propose a comprehensive plan for the improvement and utilization of those great waterways which are the great potential highways of the country. Their duty is also to bring together the points of view of all users of streams, and to submit a general plan for the development and conservation of the vast natural resources of the waterways of the United States. Clearly it is impossible for the waterways commission to accomplish its great task without considering the relation of streams to the conservation and use of all other natural resources, and I have asked that it do so. Here, then, for the first time, the orderly developemnt and planned conservative use of all our natural resources is presented as a single problem. One by one the individual tasks in this great problem have already been undertaken. One by one in practical fashion the methods of dealing with them were worked out. National irrigation has proved itself a success by its actual working. Again, actual experience has shown that the national forests will fulfill the larger purpose for which they were created. All who have thoughtfully studied the subject have come to see that the solution of the public lands question lies with the home maker, with the settler who lives on his land and that government control of the mineral fuels and the public grazing lands is necessary and inevitable. Each of these conclusions represented a movement of vast importance which would confer large benefits upon the nation, but which stood by itself. They are connected together into one great fundamental problem-that of the conservation of all our natural resources. Upon the wise solution of this, much of our future obviously depends. Even such questions as the regulation of railway rates and the control of corporations are in reality subsidiary to the primal problem of the preservation in the interests of the whole people of the resources that nature has given us. If we fail to solve this problem, no skill in solving the others will in the end avail us very greatly. Now as to the matter of taxation.

Most great civilized countries have an income tax and an inheritance tax. In my judgment both should be part of our system of federal taxation. I speak diffidently about the income.tax because one scheme for an income tax was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court by a five to four vote; and in addition it is a difficult tax to administer in its practical workings, and great care would have to be exercised to see that it was not evaded by the very man whom it is most desirable to have taxed, for if so evaded it would of course be worse than no tax at all, as the least desirable of all taxes is the tax which bears heavily dishonest man. Nevertheless, a graduated income tax of the proper type would be a desirable peramnent feature of federal taxation, and I still hope that one may be devised which the supreme court will declare constitutional.

Italy's New Cereal.

Italy has produced a new cereal for preak-making purposes that is attracting a good deal of popular attention. A public test was made the other day at Mesbrino of baking bread from flour of the new grain, which is named Olco Cafro, and has been developed by a priest of the name of Candeo. The bread was pronounced to be palatable, ight, and, mixed with one-third of wheaten flour, is declared to make a sustaining food at very low price. Besides this, the "inventor" says that its general use would do away with the pellagra in Italy.-London Globe.

see any iniquity save that of a particular class; and this whether he is able only to see the crimes of arrogance and oppression in the rich or the crimes of envy and violence in the poor.

So much for what I have to say to you in your capacity of molders and guides of public thought. In addition I want to speak to you on two great movements in our public life which I feel must necessarily occupy no inconsiderable part of the time of our public men in the near future. One of these is the question of, in certain ways, reshaping our system of taxation so as to make it bear most heavily on those most capable of supporting the strain. The other is the question of utilizing the natural resources of the nation in the way that will be of most benefit to the nation as a whole.

Need of Foresight.

In utilizing and conserving the natural resources of the nation the one characteristic more essential than any other is foresight. Unfortunately, foresight is not usually characteristic of a young and vigorous people, and it is obviously not a marked characteristic of us in the United States. Yet assuredly it should be the growing nation with a future which takes the long look ahead; and no other nation is growing so rapidly as ours or has a future so full of promise. No other nation enjoys so wonderful a measure of present prosperity which can of right be treated as an earnest of future success, and for no other are the rewards of foresight so great, so certain, and so easily foretold. Yet hitherto as a nation we have tended to live with an eye single to the present, and have permitted the of our natural wealth. The conservation of our natural resources and their proper use constitute the fundamental problem which underlies almost every other problem of our national life. Unless we maintain an adequate material basis for our civilization, we can not maintain the institutions in which we take so great and just a pride; and to waste and destroy our natural resources means to undermine this material basis. During the last five years efforts have been made in several new directions in the government service to get our people to look ahead, to exercise foresight, and to substitute a planned and orderly development of our resources in the place of a haphazard striving for immediate profit. The effort has been made through several agencies.

reckless waste and destruction of much

In 1962 the reclamation service began to develop the larger opportunities of the western half of our country for irrigation. The work includes all the states from the great plains through the Rocky mountains to the Pacific slope. It has been conducted with the clear and definite purpose of using the valuable water resources 'of the public land for the greatest good for the greatest number in the long run; in other words, for the purpose of putting upon the land permanent home makers who will use and develop it for themselves and for their children and children's children. There has been opposition, of course, to this work of the reclamation service; for we have been obliged to antagonize certain men whose interest it was to exhaust for their own temporary personal profit natural resources which ought to be developed through use, so as to be conserved for the permanent common advantage of the people as a whole. But there will be no halt in the work of preserving the waters which head in the Rocky mountain region so as to make them of most use to the people as a whole; for the policy is essential to our national welfare.

Preserve Mineral Resources.

ultimately get It.

In addition to treating aright for the benefit of the whole people the forests and the mineral beds, we should similarly try to preserve for the benefit of all the people the great stretches of publie domain, some three hundred million acres in all, which are unfit for cultivation by present methods and valuable only for the forage which they supply. This vast area is now open to the free grazing of cattle, sheep, horses and goats, without restriction or regulation. When population has increased, as is now the case, such utter lack of management means that the public domain is turned over to be skinned by men whose only concern is to get what they can out of it at the moment, without any regard to whether or not it is ruined so far as the next generation is concerned. In other words, the range is not so much used as wasted by abuse; and as an incident conflict and bloodshed frequently arise between opposing users. With the rapid settling of the west the range is more and more overgrazed. Moreover, much of it can not be used to advantage unless it is fenced, for fencing is the only way by which to keep in check the absentee owners of nomad flocks which roam hither and thither, utterly destroying the pasturage and leaving a waste behind, so that their presence is compatible with the presence of home makers.

Prevention of Frauds.

For several years we have been doing everything in our power to prevent fraud upon the public land. What can be done under the present laws is now being done through the joint action of the interior department and the department of justice. But fully to accomplish the prevention of fraud there is need of further legislation and especially of a sufficient appropriation to permit the department of the interior to examine certain classes of entries on the ground before they pass into private ownership. The appropriation asked for last winter, if granted, would have put an end to the squandering of the public domain, while it would have prevented any need of causing hardship to individual settlers by holding up their claims. However, the appropriation was not given us, and in consequence it is not possible to secure, as I would like to

Inheritance Tax.

In my judgment, however, the inheritance tax is both a far better methfor the purpose I have in view-the ing up the mine.

purpose of having the swollen fortunes of the country bear in proportion to solely because of the protection given the owners by the public. They are a constant source of care and anxiety. to the public and it is eminently just that they should be forced to pay heavily for the protection given them. It arily from disposal, and asked for the tion has the absolute right to decide as to the terms upon which any man shall receive a bequest or devise from another. We have repeatedly placed and they have repeatedly been declared constitutional by the courts. I believe that the tax should contain the progressive principle. Whatever any in-dividual receives, whether by gift, bequest, or devise, in life or in death should, after a certain amount i reached, be increasingly burdened; and the rate of taxation should be increased in proportion to the remote ness of 100od of the man receiving from the man giving or devising. The principle of this progressive taxation of inheritance has not only been au thoriatively recognized by the legislation of congress, but it is now un equivocally adopted in the leading civilized nations of the world-in, for instance, Great Britain, France and Ger many. Switzerland led off with the imposition of high progressive rates Great Britain was the first of the great ! nations to follow suit, and within the last few years both France and Geramny have adopted the principle. In Great Britain all estates worth $5,000 or less are practically exempt from death duties, while the increase is such that when an estate exceeds $5,000,000 in value and passes to a dis tant kinsman or stranger in blood the government receives nearly 18 pe cent. In France, under the progressive system, so much of an inheritance as exceeds $10,000,000 pays over 20 per cent. to the state if it passes to a distant relative, and five per cent. if it passes to a direct heir. In Germany very small inheritance are exempt, but the tax is so sharply progressive that an inheritance not in agricultural or forest lands which exceeds $250,000. the testimony of Harry Orchard at if it goes to distant relatives, is taxed at the rate of about 25 per cent. The German law is of special interest, because it makes the inheritance tax events beginning with the explosion an imperial measure, while allotting to the individual states of the empire a portion of the proceeds and permitting them to impose taxes in addition to those imposed by the imperial government. In the United States the na tional government has more than one imposed inheritance taxes in addition to those imposed by the states, and in Colorado was discreditable they in the last instance about one-half of the states levied such taxes concurrently with the national government. making a combined maximum rate, in some cases as high as 25 per cent; story he related Wednesday and and, as a matter of fact, several states

Orchard lifted the total of his own murdered victims to 18, and detailed the circumstances under which he tried to murder former Gov. Peabody, Judge Goddard, Judge Gabbert, Gen. Sherman Bell, Dave Moffat and Frank Herne. Incidentally, he confessed to a plan to kidnap the child of one of his former associates.

Orchard's Story Unshaken.

Boise, Idaho .- Counsel for William D. Haywood continued their attack on both sessions of the trial Friday, and centered their strongest assault on the in the Vindicator mine and ending with the earlier meetings between the witness and the leaders of the Federation of Miners in Denver. To the extent that traffic with "the other side" in the war of labor and capital succeeded in discrediting the witness. In the iment we have heard thundered from the pulpit in various terms ever since our childhood and until very recently. The writer has denounced the state ment as false and un-Christian in these columns on occasion; and rejoices that the anathema is now repudt ated by the Christian ministry itself. Rev. Russell H. Bready is the latest hough not the first, of Lowell preachers to express his shame that such a statement ever came from the pulpit, declaring that "A moral man is an ornament to the community. strange indeed that so simple a statement of truth should ever have been questioned or that it need now be reiterated.

Filson, in his recently issued fils tory of the United States, says: "The former belief that there was a civilized people known as the Mound Builders who preceded the Indians is no longer held by thoughtful students of the subject;" and he attributes the mounds of the Ohio valley to the therokees and Pawnees. Thus disappears one of the excuses often offered for the driving out of the red man by the white; and thus we are reminded that much of life's education consists of unlearning things formerly taught us as true.

THAT "The influence of a moral man upon a community is worse than that of a horse thief," is a sentiment we have heard thundered from the pulpit in various terms ever since our childhood and until very recently. The writer has denounced the state ment as false and un-Christian in these columns on occasion; and rejoices that the anathema is now repudiated by the Christian ministry itself. Rev. Russell H. Bready is the latest, hough not the first, of Lowell preachers to express his shame that such a statement ever came from the pulplt, declaring that "A moral man is an ornament to the community." Strange indeed that so simple a statement of truth should ever have been questioned or that it need now be reiterated.

ELSON, in his recently issued History of the United States, savs: "The former belief that there was a civilized people known as the Mound Builders who preceded the Indians is no longer held by thoughtful students of the subject;" and heattributes the mounds of the Ohio valley to the Cherokees and Pawnees. Thus disappears one of the excuses often offered for the driving out of the red man by the white; and thus we are reminded that much of life's education consists of unlearning things formerly taught us as true.

Accounting to the state press, irrespective of party, the present legislature is a record-breaker in rank defiance of the popular will. The Deme ocrats are not saying much; they are practically helpless, and have carned to submit to the inevitable. Evidently, if Michigan is to have a housecleaning, the job is up to the Pepublicans; but if they will use an independent or non-partisan scrubbrash, all good citizens will join in her and Loveller Lowell?" the renovating.

WE NOTE that Representative Ward's physician now reports his distinguished patient as ill with gastritis and denies that Ward will be able to see anybody within a week. Doubtless the doctor will be able to find a new disease every week, as long as the money holds out. In the meantime the memory of poor Edith Presley grows dim as more recent events absorb public attention.

Nature's Way Is Best.

The function strengthening and tissue building plan of treating chronic, linger-ing and obstinate cases of disease as pur-sued by Dr. Pierce, is following after Nature's plan of restoring health.

He uses natural remedies, that is extracts from native medicinal roots, prepared by processes wrought out by the expenditure of much time and money, without the use of alcohol, and by skillful combination in just the right proportions.

Used as ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Black Cherry-bark, Queen's root, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot and Stone root, specially exert their influence in cases of hung, bronchial and throat troubles, and this "Discov-ERY" is, therefore, a sovereign remedy for bronchitis, laryngitis, chronic coughs, catarrh and kindred ailments. The above native roots also have the

The above native roots also have the strongest possible endorsement from the leading medical writers, of all the several schools of practice, for the cure not only of the diseases named above but also for indigestion, torpor of liver, or bilious-ness, obstinate constipation, kidney and bladder troubles and catarrh, no matter where heated where located.

You don't have to take Dr. Pierce's say-so alone as to this; what he claims for his "Discovery" is backed up by the writings of the most eminent men in the medical profession. A request by postal card or letter, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a little book of extracts from eminent medical authorities endorsing the ingredients of his medicines, will bring a little book free that is worthy of your attention if needing a good, safe, reliable remedy of known composition for the cure of almost any old chronic, or lingering malady.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic.

The most valuable book for both men and women is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A splendid 1008-page volume, with engravings and colored plates. A copy, paper-covered, will be sent to anyone sending 21 cents in one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps.

Mrs. Brock and sister, Mrs. John Robinson, and twin daughters, Pink and Blue, of Odessa visited Messrs. and Mesdam's Ed. Cave and I. Cave last Thursday.

The members of the Ladies' Aid society will meet at the church Wednesday to perfect arrangements for the picnic to be held in W. R. Bowen's grove July 4th.

CHAPTER VI. An Anonymous Letter.

The first lot of bills that I paid for the Carney establishment contained one for two dozen bottles of Scotch whisky which had been ordered by Mr. Carney and shipped by express to Carney-Croft on the day that he and Bobbs were in my office. I made no montion of this item to Miss Carney when I was going over the accounts with her, but paid it on the chance that it was correct. In this I was not mistaken, for, although I never saw John Carney again except for an instant, I did see the identical 24 bottles, empty, of course, in the cellar at Carney-Croft.

It was more than three years after the death of the old gentleman and the stable boy, and I had gone back to the place to arrange for its opening after place to arrange for its opening after it had been closed for the greater part from this place at any cost. of that time.

John Carney had remained at Carney-Croft only long enough to have a short visit with his sister and put to rights his own personal effects, and the letters fairly danced before my then, accompanied by Bobbs he had departed for a tour of the world or the importance of finding, if possible, coodness knows where. As I threw back the sheet something fell to the floor; picking it up, I found a small, square envelope addressed in a cramped and totally unfamiliar hand:

Frederick Ware, Esq., Carney-Croft.

I tore it open, and my astonishment at its discovery was increased ten fold by its contents. The note read:

'I sat down and gazed out of the window across the river to the heavily wooded hills in the distance, and made an almost superhuman effort to control myself. Finally I opened the letters that had come by the morning's mail and began to read them in a perfunctory way. The second was from my secretary, and, as I perused it. I suddenly awoke from my apathy and read with interest:

"Two letters came this morning from Mr. Carney, one postmarked London and the other Paris. I forward them, with other papers, under separate cover.

"Dr. MacArdel called this afternoon and was greatly surprised to learn that you had gone away so suddenly and without sending him word. He said he wanted to see you on a personal matter, and seemed quite disappointed at missing you.

"The Jarvis case has been postponed to the fall term."

The letter closed with a few memoranda of business matters and by the time I had finished reading it my mind was clear to an extent that enabled me to see things in a reasonable light and to appreciate that the mystery of the note was as deep if not deeper than ever.

Opening the door I strode downstairs, into the library, and up to the figure in the chair.

"Hello!" I exclaimed, grasping him by the arm.

"Better late than never!" he responded with a hearty laugh. "What made you sneak up tairs in that mysterious way? Think I was a ghost?" "No," I replied, slowly and seriously, "I thought you were a scoundrel, and I owe you an apology from the bottom of my heart!"

"Have a cigar, old man," said Mac-Ardel.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Disappearing Cigar Case.

"What on earth brings you here, Mac?" I exclaimed, accepting his proffered cigar and lighting it with a sudden interest and respect for the traditional pipe of peace.

"Train," said MacArdel, "coupled with an overwhelming desire to seize upon you and take you off with me for a month's vacation."

"So that's why you called at my office yesterday afternoon, eh?" 1 queried.

"How did you know that I was there?" asked MacArdel.

"My secretary mentioned in his letter that came this morning," I explained. "And it's a great good thing 1 temerity that was half wishing and that he did, for while the information half hopeful.

ing alone in a haunted house. Pretty poor sort of a joke, to be sare, but I don't see anything to warrant your getting so excited over it."

"See here, Mac!" I said, drawing my chair up close to his, "you don't seem to understand just what I mean. The point is simply this. No one could have written a thing like that, in such a positive way, unless he had known that it was true. Now, you are the only person living with whom I have ever talked on this subject, for you will remember that you once intimated pretty broadly that I was in love with Miss Carney."

"And you denied it flatly," he romarked.

"Yes," I replied, "I denied it flatly."

"MacArdel," I said, soberly, looking him squarely in the face, "you've cornered me and I might as well tell you the whole thing. It was three years ago when we talked of this before, and I must have loved her then and from the day I first saw her. But not as I love her now, old man, for now she is my all in all and my only thoughts are for her welfare and her happiness. You know I saw her very frequently when she was living in town, and now that she is away our correspondence is necessarily frequent, so that I can keep informed of her whereabouts and know of her needs from the estate."

"Of course, you could not pay her any attentions unless you meant to ask her to marry you," said MacArdel, "but I don't see any objection whatever to that. I know you haven't any money, but your social position is as good as hers, and you are doing well in your profession. It seems to me that it would be a very appropriate match if you love each other."

"No, Mac," 1 insisted. "It's better as it is. Considering my position in connection with the estate it would be a mean advantage for me to take, and, Mae, if she refused me, I believe I would kill myself, I'm such a fool over it."

"But suppose she didn't refuse you," said MacArdel softly, laying his hand on my arm.

"No, old man, it's no use talking that way," I replied. "I'll just go on as I've been doing. It's the only thing I can do, as I see it."

"Bet you a dinner at Sherry's that you propose to her and marry her within two years!" said MacArdel, with a quizzical look in his kindly eyes, and, with a half-hearted grasp of his hand, I accepted the wager with it is more hopelessly tangled up than before, for, as you were in my office yesterday afternoon, you could not possibly have had anything to do with it. "Delightfully interesting, I'm sure!"

said MacArdel, "and most appropriate when occurring in a house alleged to be haunted. Still, I confess I could follow you more closely if I had some faint glimmer of an idea of what you are talking about."

I handed him the note, and he read it slowly and thoughtfully.

"When did you get it?" he asked. "Found it on my bed this morning when I woke," I replied.

"Who put it there?" he continued. "How the devil do'l know who put t there?" I returned, excitedly. "The house was locked up and so was the room. The window was open, I admit, but I am positive that no one

'So you see why I feel so strongly about this note," I said, rising and opening the door, which I had closed carefully on my entrance. "The subject is one that I cannot bear to have trifled with, and, anyway, I cannot imigine who could have read my innermost thoughts so correctly. That puzzles me more than the mysterious appearance of the letter in my bed." "I fancy we'll be able to explain that without much trouble," said MacArdel, lighting a fresh cigar and laying his cigar case on the table beside him. "These mysterious occurrences always happen in a most simple fashion, after all is said and done. One night, last summer I was reading in bed and just before putting out the light I laid my eyeglasses on a little table about six feet from the window. I was perfectly sure about it, for the spring was bent slightly and I had spent several minutes fussing with them before I put them down. The next morning they were gone and never turned up, in spite of the most vigorous search, until the maid found them, three or four days later, hidden completely in the folds of the lace curtain which had blown across the table and caught them up. As my room was on the fourth floor and had been securely locked all night, the affair was quite mystifying until it was so simply explained. We'll find out before long how the letter got on your bed, and that will doubtless lead to the discovery of its author. Have a free cigar and show me around the place a bit. It looks mighty interesting and romantic."

As he spoke MacArdel reached for his cigar case and my eye followed his hand to the table beside which we both stood and where I had seen him lay it only a moment before.

It had vanished as completely as if the earth had swallowed it up.

AT A WAYSIDE HOSTELRY.

Darky Servitor Most Obliging Under the Circumstances.

A traveling man stopped recently at a little country hamlet some miles from a Texas city to sell a merchant a bill of goods. There was only one hotel in the place, and this had an unsavory reputation. He had only one night to stay, however, so he concluded to make the best of a bad bargain.

He went to his room early, and, feeling the need of some hot water to remove the stains of his journey, cast his eye about the wall for an electric button, which, of course, was conspicuous by its absence.

He happened to think that he had seen a negro porter below, and, sticking his head out of the door, he yelled lustily:

"Hey, you black rascal, come up here!"

"Yas'r, yas'r, I's comin'," was the quick response, and a moment later the old darkey appeared before the drummer, bowing obsequiously, cap in hand.

"I want some hot water, and I want It quick," said the drummer.

"I's pow'ful sorry, boss, pow'ful sorry," replied the negro, his voice trembling. "We ain't got no hot watah, but I kin hot yuh some."

HE ALSO WAS A COLLECTOR.

Cleveland Artist Came Back with a Counter Proposition.

A local newspaper artist got a letter one day from a man over in Indiana who said he was making a collection of sketches, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. "I have drawings from well known newspaper artists in nearly every state in the union." the Indiana man wrote, "but I have none from Ohio. I have seen some of your work and I think it is good. If you will send me some little sketch for my collection I shall have it framed."

The artist noticed from the letterhead that the Indiana man was connected with a bank in one of the small towns in the state of literature. That gave him a hunch, and he wrote back as follows:

"I am making a collection of ten dollar bills. I haven't secured specimens from every state in the union, but I have several tens and a few twenties, and I am particularly anxious to have a ten dollar bill from Indiana. I notice that you are employed in a place where ten dollar bills are kept, and if you send me one for my collection I shall be glad to have it framed."

anxious. I think, not to be left alor with me-started down the platform after them, I following. Mrs. Taylor and her sister walked to the end of he platform and looked across, a bis mit toss away, to where Stoddard stood talking to the girl I had already acard described as weating a gray roat and carrying an umbrella.

The girl in gray crossed the track quickly and addressed the two women cordially. Taylor's back was to her and he was growing eloquent in a mild well-bred way over the dullness of our statesmen in not seeing the advanrages that would accrue to the United States in fostering our shipping industry. His wife, her sister and the girl in gray were so near that I could heat plainly what they were saving. They were referring annaronally to the girl's refusal of an invitation to accompany them to California.

"So you can't go-it's too bad! W had hoped that when you really saw us on the way you would relent," said Mrs. Taylor.

"But there are many reasons; and above all Sister Theresa needs me."

Ut was the voice of Olivia, a little lower, a little more restrained than I had known it; but undeniably it was she.

"But think of the rose gardens that are waiting for us out there!" said the other lady. They were showing her the deference that elderly women always have for pretty girls.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitu-tional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken in-ternally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assist-ing nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. ## Who Needs A Watch

In these days of cheap watches and shoddy manufacture, a time, piece should selected with care.

A good watch should last a lifetime, and longer. Such watches are the only kind worth having and in order to get them you must buy of a reliable dealer who is at hand to make the guarantee good.

The matinee horse races passed off according to schedule at Island park race track last Saturday afternoon. The committee had done its work well and the track was in fine condition. The attendance was fair and the fine weather added to the enjoyableness of the occasion.

Judge Hakes kindly furnishes the following report of the events; First race called was the free for all trot or pace with four starters. Teddy Bear drew the pole and getting away well was first around the turn with Bob crowding him closely and Milk-Maid close up. These three made a fine race but Teddy was too steady for the rest of them and won after a good race down the home stretch, Cute not being used to company did not do as well as she can. The second heat was a gool one Teddy Bear and Bob racing neck and neck to the quarter where Bob went to a break and could not regain the lost ground. Mllk Maid came very fast in the stretch and was right up with Bob at the finish. Cute played cute again and was last.

The half mile running race had three starters and proved to be one of the best we have had on the track for a long time. Hoosier Boy drew the pole but Pank was away in the lead and never headed until the home stretch where Hoosler Boy beat Punk out by a small margin. Jus Jola got away slow but was right up with the bunch at the finish. When the horses came out for the second heat it looked like a toss up to an outsider who would be first at the finish. Punk got away in the lead to a good start and was first around the turn, Jils Jola second and then Hoosier Boy got busy and out ran them both down the back stretch. It was a horse race to the finish and all in a bunch with every Jockey doing his utmost to win.
