A 14-year-old Pittsburgh, Pa. girl, who captured a rabid dog, held its jaws shut with her hands and locked it in an empty school-room until authorities could be called, was given the 1947 Humane Act Award at the American Veterinary Medical Association's convention at Cincinnati, O. The girl, Suzanne Weller, received the national citation and a $100 U. S. savings bond.

While pheasant hunters are concerned about the scarcity of pheasants, one gardener in Allen Park, a Detroit suburb, has complained of too many, and has obtained a conservation department permit for control of those damaging his tomatoes, sweet corn and melons.

Furnishing of untrue information to the Manitowoc Herald-Times cost Edward K. Ryan, Manitowoc, a $10 fine under terms of Wisconsin's new law which makes such an act a misdemeanor. Ryan pleaded guilty to charges of "maliciously" furnishing an untrue statement to Miss Connie Crooks of the Herald-Times staff. He said he was attempting to get even with a practical joker. The story was printed in the Herald-Times.

As a result of a year's planning and preparation, all Iowa county highways and principal roads have been assigned names instead of numbers for easier identification and signs designating these will start going up this month at 800 intersections. Farm houses throughout the county will be numbered to make them easier to locate.

Airplane spraying of DDT over Dodge Brothers No. 4 state park at Cass Lake recently for mosquito control is the first such aerial spraying in state park history, conservation parks men report.

Mrs. Grace Kluger, who wanted only one dozen eggs, got twenty-six when she scrambled on her front lawn and twenty-five pounds of butter as well, she told Traffic Judge John M. Wiso. She reported she had called Albert S. Miller, a butcher and egg salesman driver, from her front door. Catching her signal, he swung his truck around for the sale, but his vehicle hit another car and overturned on the Kluger lawn, in Detroit, spilling the cargo.

The judge found Miller guilty of reckless driving and fined him $35.

A young Hoistola cow apparently wanted no part of Alaska and had to negotiate a high dive into Seattle's Elliott bay to prove it. The 1,400-pound bovine, one of a shipment going to Ketchikan, Alaska, broke from a loading crane, thundered down the dock and went over the end of the wharf. The bruised and bleeding cow thrashed around in the water until she was towed alongside a ship and hoisted back onto the pier in a cargo net. She was loaded in a truck and taken back to her pasture at nearby Renton, Wash.

Popularity of Michigan sport fishing has resumed its upward climb. The conservation department reports 607,324 fishing licenses were issued in the first seven months of the year, compared with 565,407 issued in the same months of the record-breaking season of 1946.

A $3,686,117 check from the 23rd Ford estate has been turned over to Macomb County Treasurer, William G. Miller in payment of state inheritance taxes. In all probability the payment will clear up the estate's tax debt to Michigan, probate court attorneys said. The state's public schools will draw approximately $250 extra per census child this year due to this payment. A $3,000,000 payment was made a year ago.

Shipment of a million and a half hunting licenses is proceeding on schedule and all 3,000 license dealers will be supplied with licenses, back tags and seals by mid-September, the conservation department reports. Major hunting season starting dates are October 1 for grouse in the Upper Peninsula, October 7 for ducks over the entire state, October 15 for pheasants in southern Michigan and November 15 for the regular gun hunting of deer.

The radio range stations installed by the Department of Aeronautics at Houghton and Grand Marais are now on 24 hour operation. THE USE OF TIME

The days and hours of life may be considered as a sort of capital, which people can spend in a useful way and one helping to enrich their lives and make them more productive. The people who have accomplished important results in life, have looked at time as a valuable thing which should be cherished.

The greater part of people's time is usually occupied by work of some sort. Children are required to attend school, and spend time studying. After they finish their education, they usually go to work, and have to spend the greater part of their time in some effort that has value to the world.

The hours of labor are not usually long as they were in the old days. The majority of people have some time at their disposal, which they can use in such ways as they see fit. Many housewives may say there are few such hours for them. Their hours are about all taken by their labor for the home and their children. The devotion which they give to these tasks is rewarded as the young people grow up and turn out well.

Time spent in recreations which help people to enjoy life, and which give them refreshments and rest, is not wasted. They return to their daily work after such diversions with more enthusiasm for work. Such recreations help people to think an act more effectively.

Time spent in social life is also very useful, and it brings one in contact with interesting people and creates valuable friendships. Time spent in work for the benefit of the community brings many rewards.

It would seem good judgment for people to try to find a considerable amount of time for reading. The more they know of what is going on in the world, the better equipped they are for life.

THE MODERN CONSCIENCE
How does the modern world explain that feeling that is called "conscience"? Some would say that it is a sub-conscious feeling, a sentiment created by all the good counsel that people have received from parents, teachers, clergymen, and all the influences that are thrown around them. That all those good thoughts have created a certain standard of conduct in people's minds, that commands them when they do right and warns them when they are tempted to do wrong.

Society sets up its own standards of right and wrong. It feels that when people obey the rules of right conduct, they make a contribution to human happiness. So the opinion of humanity speaks in the human heart, and gives good advice.

POPULATION STILL GAINS
The latest estimate of United States population, according to the Census Bureau, is that the country has gained about 9,180,000 population since 1940. Thus the country is still a growing one. Population growth is a sign of prosperity.

We can have faith that American enterprise and the ingenuity and intelligence of our people, will solve the problems growing out of population growth, that unemployment can be kept at a low level, and that the standards of living in our favored land will continue to grow higher.

REVIVAL OF OLD MUSIC
There has been a great revival of interest in old fashioned dancing during recent years. These pretty and graceful figures stir plenty of enthusiasm among the young folks. Plenty of older people also like to renew their youth by stepping out to the old tunes they used to hear, and which they still know so well.

The old tunes that used to echo through the halls many years ago still set people's feet a-goin', and make the older folks feel young again. They had a clear and bright melody, and they seemed to express the joy of living.

REMEMBER ANNIVERSARIES
It is said to be important for husbands to remember their wedding anniversary, also the wife's birthday. If they can remember also the date when they got engaged to be married, that also is a useful thing in family life. It makes the wife happy when the husband recalls these dates, and makes some suitable gift or recognition.

It is a grand thing when the wedded couple feel happiness as these dates recur, and when they say that the years together have brought them many blessings.

PERSISTENCE
One of the virtues which the world has always valued, is that of persistence. This feeling is expressed in the old proverb, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

If people have had some cherished desire, but if they were unable to make good on their first attempt to realize that purpose, they need not feel that the hope they had held in view is impossible to attain. They would do better to make a new effort, and try to learn from their first poor success where they were lacking, and try to remedy that defect on their next attempt.

HOME TOWN THOUGHTS
A town that has an active business organization, has an asset of high value that is sure to accomplish progress.

When a concern advertises its goods, it gives the public information that it wants, and it induces many people to come to its store to see and buy those goods.

Mrs. Frank McMahon Dies Unexpectedly

The community was shocked to hear of the death of Mrs. Frank J. McMahon, a lifetime resident of Lowell, who died unexpectedly Wednesday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock. She suffered a stroke early that morning and remained in an unconscious condition until the end.

Mrs. McMahon was born March 2, 1880, and was united in marriage to Mr. McMahon on October 18, 1897. They would have celebrated their golden wedding anniversary had she lived until the 18th of next month.

Surviving are the husband, a daughter, Mrs. Edward Royneida, and three sons, Byron, Roger and Bruce, and eleven grandchildren. The community joins in extending sincere sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Funeral services will be held at St. Mary's church Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

Advice Regarding Detective Hearing In School Children

Hearing defects are more common among school children than most parents realize. Many a child has been considered dull, even feeble-minded, who was merely hard of hearing. Parents owe it to their children to do everything within their power to prevent this tragic handicap, according to information received by the Kent County Tuberculosis Society as a part of its health education program.

Usually the causes of deafness can be avoided. The most frequent causes are such diseases as meningitis, mumps, scarlet fever, measles, influenza and diphtheria, certain drugs, loud noises, severe blows and infections of the middle ear. Deafness from hereditary conditions cannot be prevented, but may be hindered from getting worse.

Inflammation of the middle ear often follows a contagious disease. It is important in all acute and chronic diseases of children to be sure the ear drums have not been harmed. A baby cannot tell you he has an earache. The mother should watch for unusual restlessness and pulling at the ear. The doctor never overlooks the baby's ears in any examination.

Prevention of deafness involves prevention of contagious diseases and colds, prompt recognition and removal of diseased tonsils and adenoids and proper care of the ears.

Dirty ears will not necessarily cause ear trouble, but improper methods of cleaning may do so. Children should be taught never to dig into the ear with anything smaller than the elbow. It is unusual for them to stick marbles or beans into their ears. Any effort to dislodge the article by unskilled hands may be disastrous. The doctor should do it. If an unusual amount of wax accumulates in the ear canal, the doctor in again the man for the job. The same is true of a hole in the ear.

It is most important that primary school children have regular hearing tests. If there is a slight impairment, early diagnosis and treatment will bring improvement in 50 percent of cases. Cases of permanent deafness must be given sympathetic help, with every resource of modern medical science and education to lighten the burden.

Sponsored by the Kent County Tuberculosis Society, which is supported by the sale of Christmas Seals.

Farmers Advised to Locate Fertilizers

Fertilizer for winter wheat will be scarce again this year and farmers should be on the lookout for their supply, according to Dr. C. E. Miller, head of the soil science department at Michigan State college.

On the whole, Michigan farmers are using about double the amount of commercial fertilizer they used in 1946. Dealers should be contacted immediately and delivery of available fertilizer taken whenever it appears on the market.

Fertilizers containing 12 percent or more potash are desirable for wheat planted on sandy loam soils. However, many of these are not available. If dealers cannot supply high potash content fertilizers, farmers are advised to accept the 12-16 or 0-14-7 fertilizers for use this fall on sandy loam soils.

For clay soils the 2-16-18 is a good wheat fertilizer. If this grade is not available, straight superphosphate may be used for wheat on soils well supplied with humus or soils receiving manure in the rotation. On unmanured or depleted soils, the 2-12-16 and 0-14-7 are suggested as substitutes for the 2-16-18. Miller recommends that farmers planting wheat on heavy land do not use the 3-12-12 as the supply is limited and badly needed by farmers on sandy loam soils.

Application at seeding time of 300 to 500 pounds per acre is suitable for wheat in which a legume is to be seeded. When clover or alfalfa are not to be seeded in the grain 200 to 400 pounds per acre is recommended.

Find Green Pastures Enroute to Florida

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Himebaugh, who sold their home here recently, send the Ledger the following interesting card from Englis, Fla., where they are now living. August 22, came via Knoxville and found that they apparently had had plenty of rain in Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia, as pastures and corn all the way down were green. We did not suffer with the heat as we had expected. Rains around us kept the air cool and we had a very pleasant journey.

Their address is as follows: Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Himebaugh, Box 155, Englis, Fla.

Now's the Time to Prepare Homes For The Coming Winter

Summer and early fall are the times for preparing homes for winter, with special attention paid to the elimination of fire hazards.

One of the major causes of home fires is defective heating units, ranging all the way from oil stoves to central heating systems. Even the best of appliances become worn. Flues and chimneys become filled with soot. During the war, it was often impossible to adequately maintain heating plants due to shortages of parts and labor. There are still shortages, but not as severe as in the immediate past. The money spent will pay tremendous dividends in safety and security.

Faulty electric wiring is still a major destroyer of homes. Important repairs should be made by a qualified electrician. Frayed cords should be replaced. Then, when your electrical equipment is subjected to the heaviest use, it will safely carry the load.

Lastly, during the pleasant weather, homeowners should carry out a rigorous campaign to rid property of junk. Thousands of fires have originated in attics and cellars and closets filled with old clothes, furniture, magazines, etc. Many fires have resulted from improper storage of paint, gasoline and other inflammables. A clean and orderly house offers fire free opportunities.

House-Top Flyers Cause 19 Deaths

During the months of June, July and August, a total of 153 complaints were received and registered by the Air Safety Division.

Seventy-two accidents occurred during this quarter resulting in 19 fatalities. Thirteen of these fatalities were caused by violations of the aeronautical laws of Michigan. Of 59 violations processed, 19 convictions were obtained and 30 cases are still pending; no prosecution in four cases due to failure of the complainant to sign a warrant; five received disciplinary action; and one was turned over to military authorities for action.

The purpose of the air safety program is not necessarily to make arrests, but to promote safe flying and reduce Michigan's aircraft accident rate.

Week-end patrols by personnel of the Department of Aeronautics are still in progress.

Some Upper Peninsula People Favor Seceding From State of Michigan

By Gene Allman, Sec'y-Member Michigan Press Association

"Why doesn't the Upper Peninsula secede from Michigan and join the state of Wisconsin?" C. W. Brown, publisher of a weekly newspaper at Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, taunted us with this inquiry. We happened to be members of a board of directors and were visiting together at the Commodore hotel in New York City last June 29 and 30. He continued:

"My friends in the Upper Peninsula tell me they are not getting a fair deal from Lansing and are forever being neglected. This area is right next to Wisconsin. Its people trade in Milwaukee and other cities. It is logical that they should be a part of Wisconsin, not Michigan."

We relate this conversation because small beer is running heavy with clipped editorials and personal comment, most of them approving our observation that the U. P. is lagging behind the Lower Peninsula in state highways and state parks.

Harold Earle, president of Blaney Park, writes: "There is no question but that the development of the Upper Peninsula has been retarded by a lack of improved highways. There really is not much point in improvement of state parks until they are made accessible by good roads. Even our two main U. P. highways connecting the principal larger communities are not yet completed."

Mr. Earle adds: "All during the past week people stopping at Blaney Park have reported having to wait from two to four hours to get a boat either way between Blaney and Mackinaw City. Apparently, inadequacy of the ferry service is to become a common and chronic condition."

Frank J. Russell, Jr., editor of the Iron Mountain News and Marquette Mining Journal, observes: "With the exception of US41 and US2, the U. P. has nothing to boast about in the way of good roads."

For some time we have sensed an intangible "chip-on-the-shoulder" attitude in the U. P. This region tends to think of itself as the underdog, the forgotten child who is forever getting a raw deal. Such an attitude is a natural reaction to the basic trouble of the region: It has been acutely exploited by absentee ownership. It has been a colony whose natural resources have been stripped for the profit of people who live elsewhere. Even its raw timber and ores have been transported outside of the region to be converted into wages and stockholder profits through industrial processing.

We can't agree with our Wisconsin newspaper friend that a solution of all this is for the Upper Peninsula to secede from Michigan. We do feel that the region has a good case, because of its exploitation, for a greater share of improvements which will assist the local people to help themselves. What are the prospects in the Upper Peninsula. We would like to discuss some of them in this column next week.

Our Cancer Dead

(EDITORIAL)
The American Cancer Society has announced that it must raise $885,251 to meet its $12 million goal for the 1946-47 fiscal year.

This money will be spent for research in America's scientific centers, for fellowships for outstanding young medical minds, and for all the weapons that Humanity and Science cast against "the cruel killer of them all" — cancer.

It seems to us that this desperate fight is worthy of all the popular support that can be mustered. Cancer kills one in eight persons. Statistically, it claims one life from every two families . . . yours or your neighbors. Of the approximately 700,000 cases in the United States, about 184,800 will die this year.

The true tragedy of this situation lies in the fact that while the number of deaths from cancer has been growing steadily, 50 percent of those stricken cannot be saved until new discoveries are made. Perhaps even more tragic is the knowledge that another 25 percent will die although they could be saved by early diagnosis and treatment.

We feel a fitting memorial to the cancer dead is a contribution to this fund which seeks to do so much for the living. And we suggest that those who have a dime or a dollar to spare send it at once to the nearest Cancer Committee office or mail it directly to the American Cancer Society, 47 Beaver St., New York 4, N. Y.

Let's meet this year's cancer control goal.

Catholic Congress Opens September 12

Plans are virtually completed for the Catholic Tri-State congress, which opens in Grand Rapids on September 12 and continues for six days.

One of the largest Catholic assemblies ever held in Michigan, the Congress will draw delegates from Ohio and Indiana as well as from Michigan.

Listed on the program as speakers or participants are 165 specialists in varied fields of Catholic activity. These experts will outline to the delegates the principles and methods of operation in Catholic education, hospitals, social action, industrial and rural life and other fields.

Linwood I. Noyes, editor of the Ironwood Daily Globe, suggests that Gogebic and Ontonagon counties be added to the "travel" list. He proposes an Upper Peninsula highway conference for coordinated, concerted action.

Mr. Noyes concludes: "If any additional proof of neglect of highways in the western part of the Upper Peninsula is needed, it is found in the fact that Ontonagon county is the only county in the state that does not have a single mile of concrete highway. This sort of neglect should not be permitted to continue for another generation."

For some time we have sensed an intangible "chip-on-the-shoulder" attitude in the U. P. This region tends to think of itself as the underdog, the forgotten child who is forever getting a raw deal. Such an attitude is a natural reaction to the basic trouble of the region: It has been acutely exploited by absentee ownership. Great Stride Made In People's Health In Past 20 Years

How great a stride public health in Michigan has made in less than a generation is indicated in fatality figures of only four acute communicable diseases released today by Dr. F. S. Leeder, Director of the Bureau of Disease Control, Michigan Department of Health.

Twenty years ago diphtheria took 516 Michigan lives, whooping cough 201, scarlet fever 235, and typhoid 84, a total of 1046.

In 1946, just two decades later, diphtheria was responsible for 27 deaths, whooping cough 44, scarlet fever 3 and typhoid 6, a total of 80.

Active immunization against diphtheria and whooping cough, better treatment for scarlet fever, and improved sanitation, safe water supplies and other means of typhoid control resulted in saving almost 1000 lives in 1946, alone, and thousands more in the generation.

"Deaths from diphtheria and whooping cough can be still further reduced when all parents realize the necessity for and do not neglect the immunization of their children in infancy and 'booster shots' when they enter school," Dr. Leeder said.

"Newer methods of treating scarlet fever will continue to cut its toll, and continued vigilance in sanitation and control of carriers will continue to reduce the lives of their children could virtually map in another generation," Dr. Leeder concluded.

Stephens' Assailants Given Prison Terms

The two assailants, who attacked Deputy Frank Stephens, of Lowell, on August 9, Fred Lewis, 54, of R1, Edmore and Robert C. Underhill, 23, of Lansing, were each given one to two year sentences, to be served at Southern Michigan prison by Judge Dale Souter, of Grand Rapids, last Thursday.

Stephens was attacked by the two men while attempting to question them about damaging a parking car in Lowell, when they had squeezed their car into a narrow parking space. Stephens was hit on the head and kicked before he could even question the men. Several Lowell men came to his assistance, as there were five men in the car. The other men received fines for drunk and disorderly charges.

In giving the prison sentences Judge Souter said: "There has been too much disrespect for the law, particularly in Kent county, in sentencing you two men, I am also serving a warning to others that officers of the law cannot be resisted and certainly not assaulted."

Mrs. Milton Fuller Beloved by Everyone Dies Unexpectedly

The sudden death of Montie M. Fuller, wife of Milton P. Fuller, Vice President and General Manager of the King Milling Company, has brought sorrow to a wide host of friends, including many in the town of Lowell.

In the best of spirits last week, she entertained friends from Portland and Ionia on Friday and Saturday evenings at the Fuller cottage on Lake Morrison, and spent a restful day at the lake on Sunday. A heart ailment, which had necessitated her leaving quietly for years, struck Monday morning at 3:30 o'clock and she died within half an hour.

The Fuller's came to Lowell in 1945. Mr. Fuller in June, Mrs. Fuller in October. They had lived the preceding eleven years in Topeka, Kan., where Mr. Fuller was the Executive Vice President of the Thomas Page Mill Company and where both he and Mrs. Fuller were active in numerous church and civic organizations and enterprises. Though Mr. Fuller had retired from active participation in the milling business in the spring of 1945, the opportunity to become part of the King Milling Company on the death of its President, William C. Doyle, appealed to him as a challenge he could not refuse. So he and Mrs. Fuller came to Lowell, adopted the attractive town as their own, and found new and cherished friends.

Mrs. Fuller was born in Gilman, Ill., the fifth and youngest child of Critton and Polly Ann Sutton. On December 11, 1878, after grammar school and night school at Topeka and Minnesota, she was a member of First Normal College, at Mankato, Minn., and from Parker College at Winnebago, Minn. She taught grade school for a time in Duluth, Minn., and was an instructor in Latin at Parker College for some years. In 1903 she became the bride of Mr. Fuller, who was at that time Principal of the school and editor of the newspaper at Glenville, Minn. She took over the editorship of the paper, thus giving her husband more time for his school.

When the Fuller's moved to Albert Lea, Minn., Mr. Fuller became the state representative of Rand McNally and Company. In 1911 Mrs. Fuller became the principal of the high school at Albert Lea. In 1912 the Fuller's moved to Waseca, Minn., where Mr. Fuller, associated himself with the Everett, Aughenbaugh Co., Millers for many years, finally became its president. In Waseca two children, Robert and Margaret, were born to the Fuller's, both being lost in the influenza epidemic following World War I. While Mr. Fuller was Vice-President of Everett, Aughenbaugh and Company, the Fullers moved to Minneapolis, where they lived for nine years.

In the course of their long married life, Mr. and Mrs. Fuller reared, or partly reared, nine children, some of them relatives, other wards. The story of these children would fill a long, and lively, book.

All her life Mrs. Fuller was interested in art, especially in oil paintings and etchings, and her collections of antiques, especially of antique glass, and of buttons, were notable. She was much interested in birds and floriculture. To the day of her death she retained her membership in Grace Episcopal Church of Topeka, Kan. In Lowell she became a member of the Women's Club and was actively associated with women's organizations of the First Congregational church.

Mrs. Fuller is survived by her husband; by one brother, Harry T. Sutton, of Florida; and by several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at the First Congregational church in Lowell at 2 p. m. on Wednesday, September 3, the Rev. Norman Woon officiating, and at Waseca, Minn., where, beside her two children, she will be buried today, September 4.

Farming is One of America's Most Hazardous Industries

4,500 farmers are killed in occupational accidents in an average year. That's 13% more deaths than occur in all manufacturing industries combined! Farmers experience 75% more accidental injuries than do factory workers in the U. S. A. and, in addition, the farmer is exposed to all the usual home and travel accident risks.

Don't run the risk of being a farmer who became an accident statistic at the expense of his family.

New Drugs Check Pneumonia Following Injury to Chest

Pneumonia, following injury to the chest, can be prevented with large doses of penicillin or sulfadiazine, according to Dr. Edward Phillips, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Dr. Phillips presents his observations on 73 patients treated for pneumonia following injury to the chest.

The author cites two investigators who demonstrated by animal experimentation how a blow to the chest, with or without fracture of the ribs, can produce injury to the lungs. The blow stimulates the vagus nerve, which extends from the cranium to the lungs, to contact the bronchial tubes which results in a partial collapse of the lung. This collapse area becomes infected because it lacks aeration.

Injections of atropine into the veins, which paralyzes the terminal fibers of the vagus nerve, will prevent or minimize the chances of collapse and infection following injury to the chest, states the author. Large doses of penicillin and sulfadiazine will sterilize the lung area.

Additional facts regarding the 73 patients follow:

In 54 patients (74 per cent) pneumonia developed only on the same side as the injury.

The majority of patients had a mild type of pneumonia.

Over 92 per cent of pneumonia cases occurred within six days of the injury.

Over 50 per cent of the patients recovered within one week.

Three patients died with a resultant mortality rate of 4.1 per cent.

Buy Less Expensive Food To Cut Family Meal Costs

To cut food costs without lowering the nutritional value of family meals, buy the less expensive grades where such a choice is possible. Standard packs of canned vegetables or fruits are just as high in food value as choice or fancy packs, but are less expensive. Grade B and C eggs are perfectly good for many purposes, and commercial and utility grades of beef can be prepared appetizingly with lower cost than the more expensive grades.

Evaporated or dried milk can be substituted in many dishes when it is cheaper than fresh milk. Canned citrus juices are frequently cheaper than fresh fruit and can furnish the meal's requirements of vitamin C. Tomatoes, raw cabbage and turnips also provide a good supply of this vitamin.

Foods that are in season are usually the best buys, and such old standbys as carrots and potatoes are nearly always good bargains. Whole-grained or enriched flour and cereal provide extra food value at little or no additional cost. Not only is molasses an inexpensive substitute for white sugar, but it also contains valuable iron.

Prof.: What's that you're working on?
Student: A fluid that will dissolve anything.
Prof.: That's a great idea. When you find it what are you going to keep it in?
